Situation. Change. (041400SEP17) The weather system associated with Hurricane Harvey is no longer affecting Texas, however the impacts to the southeastern part of Texas continue as rivers discharge the unprecedented rainfall. Major to record flood impacts will continue along the mid and upper Texas coast and in Louisiana, The lower Brazos near Rosharon will continue in major flood into next week, Buffalo Bayou continues in major/record flood as releases upstream continue for the next 10-15 days. Long duration flooding will be significantly hamper response and recovery activities.

Modeling indicates over 135k homes affected out of 2.7 million homes across 29 counties: over 22k homes may have major damage (over 5 feet of inundation) across 29 counties. There are an estimated 73,000 homes without power

Conditions continue to improve for the Houston metro area, with the greatest impacts now in the areas southwest of Houston. Major highways in the Houston metro have reopened with the exception of SH 6 and SL 8. For the most up to date information, please visit www.drivetexas.org.
